EVICTON MORATORIUM EXTENDED UNTIL SEPTEMBER 30

Seattle has extended a moratorium on residential, nonprofit, and small business evictions through September 30, 2021. This three-month extension will ensure the City can provide the cash rental assistance and housing support that is critical to stabilizing the community as it reopens.

For rental assistance from King County, the Eviction Prevention and Rental Assistance Program (EPRAP)'s Tenant Pool is still open for applications.

For more information and resources, check out the City's Renting in Seattle website. The new Renter's Handbook make the rental process, and the rights and obligations of the rental community, clear and accessible.

Tenants who receive an eviction notice during the moratorium should contact the Renting in Seattle hotline at (206) 684-5700 or go online to submit a complaint.

NEW WORKSHOPS FOR SMC CLIENTS

The SMC Community Resource Center is excited to announce a new pilot workshop initiative with Seattle Goodwill to offer workshops in a wide range of topics to help participants move forward in health, employment, and stability.

Finding the Right Job for

You: Help students explore jobs that are a good fit for their skills and interests as well as jobs that meet labor market needs.

Applying with a Conviction

History: Help individuals with a criminal background successfully apply for employment.

Healthy Living:

Provide students with tools, techniques, and ideas to manage stress and make informed decisions to improve everyday health and wellness.

Making Your Money Count:

Provides strategies and information to set money goals, manage money, use credit, and make a budget.

Navigating Community

Resources: Help students build skills for self-advocacy and gain a clear understanding of community resources available in their local communities.

Seattle Histories

DON's new storytelling project, Seattle Histories, highlights the places, people, and events that have shaped the history of Seattle's communities. Each piece, created and told by community members, emphasizes experiences, communities, and stories that have not been prioritized in mainstream media or have been left out of the historical narrative.
